Pauline was one of the most influential people in my life (as I know she has been for many people) for the short time I knew her. In fact, I was thinking of her and Googled her which is where I found out about the "memories" book the church is compiling for her.

I was married to her son David and would go with him (and Diane and Alan) to her beautiful old home for Christmas break during the late 70's. She was one of the most generous, kind, non-judgmental people I have ever know and I was somewhat awed by her in my youth!

Her energy (still working with children after retirement age) and willingness to listen to all perspectives was an inspiration.

I wish her many more years- she has truly been a blessing to this world.
